

THREE PERFECT DAYS IN

Miami

Day 1 - Welcome to Miami

- Ocean Drive and Beach
  - With only one day to see Miami, you'll want to have a large coffee to fuel up for a busy day ahead. Start your day by taking a stroll along the infamous Ocean Drive. Admire the art-deco buildings as you make your way down toward Lummus Park. Stop at a spot like Havana 1957 or similar for a drink and some people watching. Then head over to the beach to sunbathe or just admire the beautiful views and lifeguard towers.
- Wynwood
  - Miami isn't just South Beach, so I recommend venturing off to one of the interesting neighborhoods nearby. If you want to check out some cool wall murals and a more hip industrial side of town, head over to Wynwood. Make a stop at Wynwood Walls and then have lunch at Kush for the best burger of your life, low-key places like Taco Stand or Wynwood Marketplace, or a more upscale lunch place like Astra Rooftop.
- South Beach Strolls
  - Lincoln Road Mall will be your first stop for the evening. Although it's a shopping street, it has a lively vibe and the pedestrian-only zone makes it a nice place to take a stroll. Stop at one of the bars to enjoy a drink.
- Dinner
  - Española Way is another small touristy street, that has some nice dinner options. My personal pick is Pane Vino but other good places in that spot include Havana 1957 or Hosteria Romana.
- Night out
  - For your night activity, I recommend heading back to Ocean Drive to observe the nightlife of the area. Grab a drink at my favorite place that also has dinner shows Mango's, or wander around for many other party options..

Day 2 - Another side of Miami

- Breakfast
  - If you like a sweet breakfast, head over to the little gem IT Italian Trattoria, for a nice nutella croissant and some strong espresso. More traditional salty options can be found at a sit-down like Yardbird.
- Little Havana
  - Today you will experience a more cultural vibe and head over to Little Havana, a Cuban area of town to explore Calle Ocho. Stop at Dominos Park, Ball and Chain for live music and salsa, Cubaocho Museum for a mojito and admiring the beautiful space, Azucar for some guava ice cream, Cigar Factory, or Guantanamera for a cigar, and all the various shops along the way. For lunch, head over to Versailles a famous diner, El Rey De Las Fritas or Sanguich De Miami for a good Cuban sandwich.
  - An awesome option for this area is doing a Food Tour with a company called Miami Culinary Tours. You will be able to taste all the local delicacies and also learn some history.
- Bayside Marketplace
  - Head over to the downtown area and visit Bayside Marketplace, a place on the water with shops, restaurants, local salsa dancers, and a giant Ferris wheel for the best views of the area.
- Dinner
  - Brickell and Downtown areas are different compared to the South Beach vibe. My dinner pick is Casablanca Seafood Restaurant, a cool place on the water with cruising yacht as your background. Other cool places include delicious La Mar in the Brickell Key or Crazy About You, another restaurant with jaw-dropping views.
- Nightcap
  - Check out Sugar Rooftop for amazing views of downtown and upscale atmosphere or The Wharf, a more laid-back option of music and bars right on Miami River.

Day 3 - Even more Miami

- Brunch
  - Brunch should be a must-do in every new city you visit. Try Sweet Liberty in Mid-beach, American Social in Brickell, or Nikki Beach in South Beach.
- More exploring
  - Vizcaya Mansion and Gardens is a beautiful and unique thing to do in town. The grounds are simply stunning and the gardens make you feel like you're in a European castle. It's located near Brickell which you can enjoy after too for lunch.
  - Miami Design District is another cool area that has a more modern display of art installations and a bunch of luxury shops. You can admire the awesome art and then have lunch at a tasty place called Mandolin Aegean Bistro which will make you feel like you're in Mykonos for the afternoon.
- Sunset Dinner
  - Miami sunsets are filled with pink skies contrasting with vibrant green palm trees. There is really nothing like it. Head over to the Rusty Pelican for the best dinner with an incomparable view.
  - If you still have some energy left, make sure to take a last stroll on Ocean Drive or even upper Collins Ave at one of the hotel bars. Enjoy those last moments in this one-of-a-kind city.
